ONE NEGRO KILLED IN SATURDAY NIGHT'S STORM

Several Thousands of Dollars Loss Caused in Breckenridge County by Wind--Houses Blown Down and Unroofed--Two Persons Injured.

While Cloverport has still got a shawl wrapper around her and continues to shiver from the season's worst storm, reports of injuries, suffering and loss, amounting to at least three thousand dollars, are pouring in from all parts of the county.

The storm passed through here Saturday at midnight. Had the warm spell that preceded it lasted much longer vegetation would have been in full bud and Ashby's Nursery would have been in its prime time.

A negro was killed on Blanchacklett's place near Ekron. The use the negro was living in was blown down and his family was at the mercy of the storm. The baby was blown out in the yard and when Mr. Shacklett picked him up, he was asleep.

George Brown's house at Kirk was blown down and Mrs. Brown suffered a broken arm. A wall blew in on the bed where she and the baby were lying, but only the mother was injured. Her arm had to be amputated. One child was blown in a straw stack near the house. Mr. Brown's house was on J. E. Monarch's place. Several barns in the neighborhood were blown down and off the foundation.

At Harned Jas. McCoy's tobacco barn, Milt Davis' tobacco and feed barn were destroyed. One horse belonging to Davis, was killed; two died Sunday night and another is expected to die from injuries. The tobacco and feed barn of Homer Alexander's was blown down. His house was blown off its foundation.

The tobacco barn of Clint Davis' was blown off its foundation. Luther Brumpton's tobacco barn was blown over and all his fencing blown down. The barn on Charlie Beard's place, near West View, was blown down and roof off the dwelling.

At Garfield Ike McGubbin's dwelling and barn were blown down. Gid Horsley's barn, filled with tobacco, was blown down and one of his horses killed. Mrs. Lillian Bruner's arm was broken. Miner Compton's three barns filled with tobacco, were blown down and the tobacco was badly damaged.

HARDINSBURG'S ROUND OF NEWS

John P. Haswell's Store Robbed Of Thirty Dollars- Five Pupils On Honor Roll At Graded School.

MANY NEWS PERSONALS

Prof. and Mrs. R. Y. Maxey were in Louisville Saturday.

Editor Brock went to Hodgenville Thursday to hear Pres. Taft and other notables at the exercises at the Lincoln home.

Some one entered John P. Haswell's store Monday night of last week and robbed the cash drawer of $19 in cash and of some small checks making the robbery amount to $30. The robbery was cleverly executed and no clue exists as to the thief.

Robt. A. Smith is spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Hardin near Cloverport.

Dr. Sutton, through the campaign just closed, was our most hopeful and enthusiastic Democrat. Even his sanguine expectations could not reach McCreary's great victory. The Dr. always said a majority of 25,000. Though ten thousand short, he was decidedly the best political prophet our town contained.

J. C. Lewis, Les Walker, Louis Jarboe, Daily Beard and Andrew Elder were elected town trustees. Richard Davis was elected Marshal.

Judge Ahl has moved from the Brick Hotel to the Alford Heston property on Louisville street.

Rev. M. P. Compton is moving from Garfield into his residence near the High School building.

Miss Ethel Wood, of Chicago, has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Nannie Sherman, for several days.

The Honor Roll for the eighth grade pupils for the second month has these five names: Robert Haswell, 92.6; Hewitt Gibson, 92.1; Samuel Evans, 91; Murray Brown, 90.7; Jerry Lennon, 90.2.

Miss Nell Cashman, of Harned, was the guest of Mrs. Gus Shellman Saturday and Sunday.

The High School, including the grades, has ordered 125 school song books and will hereafter try to make more melody in the opening exercises.

BEAUTIFUL WEDDING

Of Miss Edmonia Orendorf Perrin And The Rev. Mr. Gary Smith Takes Place In Sherman, Texas.

The following marriage notice may be of interest to readers of the News, as the bride is a great-granddaughter of Henry Hardin, the son of the famous Gen. Wm. Hardin, and the daughter of Wm. Henry Perrin, the late Kentucky Historian--she is also the granddaughter of Mrs. Mary E. Orendorf, who was well known and much beloved in Breckenridge county.

On the evening of Thursday, October fifth, 1911, the College Park Presbyterian church at Sherman, Texas, was

READY NOW WITH SAMPLES

Bright Prospects For Big Tobacco Deal At Owensboro--Thos. Gallaher Views Samples Of Home Warehouse And A. S. Of E.

TWENTY MILLION POUNDS

With bright indications for the consummation of a sale for the 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco pooled with the Green River Tobacco Grower's Association before many days, it now looks as if the tobacco conditions in the Green River district will be greatly clarified during the next few days.

During the past few weeks the farmers, both those affiliated with the pooling organizations and the independent growers, have been resting in uneasiness for fear there would be no sale until after Christmas, but now it looks as if a great amount of the weed could be delivered before Christmas.

The Home Warehouse Company and the Green River Society of Equity have samples of their crops on exhibition at the office of the two organizations, and they have been viewed by several prominent buyers, among whom was Thomas Gallaher, president of the Gallaher, Limited Tobacco Company, one of the largest independent tobaccoists in this country.

There will be a meeting of the board of control of the Green River Tobacco Growers' association at the association's office, at which time the board will view the samples and fix the price to be asked for the year's pooled tobacco. It is thought that the action of the board of control will be very conservative, and only a small raise will be made over the prices received by the association for the pooled crop of 1910, and that the buyers will be ready to make applications for the crop within a few hours after the prices are named.

Already the samples are made up, and as soon as the prices are named, the buyers will be allowed to examine the samples and make applications for the crop pooled. Mr. Gallaher, it is understood, will remain in Owensboro and view the samples Tuesday, looking to buying the pooled crop.--Owensboro Messenger.

The Board of Control met at Owensboro last Monday and fixed the price for leaf and lugs at $6 to $10 trash at $4.

the scene of the prettiest wedding of the year, when Miss Edmonia Orendorf Perrin became the bride of Rev. Gary Smith, of Bowie, Texas. The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion. An archway of southern smilax festooned with white tulle, formed a bower of greenery behind the rostrum decorations of palms and trailing ferns.

Just preceding the ceremony, Miss Anna Gribble sang most beautifully, "Thou Art Like Unto A Lovely Floweret," which seemed peculiarly appropriate to the dainty bride. To the sweet strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, so skillfully played by Miss Mary Eagleton, the bridal party entered. The four ushers led the procession. They were: A. A. Aldrich, of Crockett, Texas; T. M. Gribble, of Waco; A. M. Gribble, of Austin, and Perrin Clyde, of Sherman; all in full evening dress. The bride's little flower girls came next, dressed in dainty lingerie frocks with pink trimmings, and carrying dainty little flower bedecked baskets. They were little Miss Alice Rose, of Gainesville, and Miss Grace Eagleton, of Sherman. The bride's maids and groomsmen followed, entering by opposite aisles. Miss Jennie Gribble, of Austin, and Mr. R. A. McCurdy, of Lockhart, came first. Miss Gribble was attired in an exquisite white marquisette over pink silk, with bertha of Princess Louise lace, and pearl trimmings. She carried an arm bouquet of La France roses and ferns tied with pink tulle.

Miss Maude Gribble and Mr. Paul Donald followed. Miss Gribble's costume was of beautiful marquisette over pink messaline, with trimming of crystal fringe. She also carried La France roses.

Next entered the little maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Clyde, who made a beautiful picture in white lace over white silk, with dainty pink accessories. She carried an exquisite shower bouquet of white roses and ferns tied with pink tulle. She, as well as the bride's maids, wore a lovely little Egyptian cap of white net and lace, edged with tiny pink rose buds.

Little Elizabeth Clyde entered next.

DEDICATION OF THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL AT HODGENSVILLE

William Howard Taft, President of United States, Delivers Principal Address--True Story of the Rail Splitter is Retold--Tributes Paid by Uncle Sam's Greatest Living Orators.

Under sombre clouds, which threatened all day to pour forth a heavy rain, a crowd, rather disappointing in numbers, witnessed yesterday, at the Lincoln Farm the formal dedication of the Lincoln Memorial Hall. The building is a very beautiful one of white granite erected on a knoll upon which once stood the cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born. It contains now the log cabin in which the great War President first saw the light of day.

Hodgenville was gayly decorated in flags and bunting in honor of the occasion and many hundred vehicles of every description were on hand to carry the people from the town to the farm, more than half of which failed to find passengers. The crowd, roughly estimated, did not exceed 2,000 while 10,000 greeted President Roosevelt when he was present at the corner stone laying. A beautifully decorated stand located near the Memorial Hall was the center of attraction from which the speeches were made. A platform of mounted police from Louisville acted as special escort for President Taft, together with Boy Scouts from Elizabethtown and a company of infantry. The principal speeches were made by ex-Gov. Joseph Folk, of Missouri, President of Lincoln Farm Association, Gov. A. E. Willson, of Kentucky, President Taft, Senator Borah, of Idaho, and

Gen. Black, of Penn. President Taft read his speech from manuscript and it was very brief, but delivered in splendid voice so that every word was distinctly heard. President Taft was at no time, from when he left Elizabethtown until he returned, greeted anywhere with anything like an ovation and his speech was only applauded by those on the stand.

The programme was carried out to the minutest detail just as it had been planned without a hitch anywhere. The President's train reached Hodgenville shortly before twelve and left at three o'clock for Elizabethtown. Mr. Robt. T. Collier, of Colliers Weekly, who bought the Lincoln Farm and put on foot the Lincoln Farm Association, was a notable figure on the stand as was also Mr. Clarence Mackay, the eighty times millionaire of New York. Among the distinguished ex Confederates present were General Basil Duke, Gen. John B. Castleman and Col. Stoddard Johnston. Mrs. Hardin Helm, a sister-in-law of Mr. Lincoln and her two daughters were among the prominent people upon the stand.

The crowd would have been much larger had it been a pretty day, but the exercises and the speeches could hardly have been more impressive.--Elizabethtown News--Friday providing the wedding ring on a cushion of white satin and lace, made of the bride's wedding gown. She was daintily attired in white and pink and wore a wreath of pink roses on her golden curls.

Little Margaret Delaney, the bride's special flower girl, next appeared, looking as pretty and dainty as a piece of Dresden China. She scattered rose petals, from her lovely basket, in the bride's pathway.

The wedding party having assembled at the altar and formed a semicircle, with the officiating clergymen, the bride entered with her brother, Rev. T. O. Perrin, of Coleman, Texas, who gave her away. At the altar, they were met by the groom and his best man, Mr. Hamilton. The beautiful and impressive ceremony was conducted by Dr. T. S. Clyde, brother-in-law of the bride, assisted by Rev. S. J. McMurray, pastor of the church.

The bride, who is a beautiful and charming girl, never looked so lovely as on her wedding night. Her gown of exquisite white lace over white satin, with long court train, was exceedingly becoming. Her bridal veil was caught with a bandeau of orange blossoms, and fastened with her mother's diamond pin, which was her only ornament. She carried a beautiful shower bouquet of bride roses and ferns, tied with white maline.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Clyde, where all their friends gathered to wish for the happy couple, a safe and prosperous voyage through life.

The pink and white color scheme, used in the wedding, was seen in the reception decorations. Misses Agnes Robertson and Margaret Mathes presided at the punch bowl. The bride's cake was cut, and much merriment caused by the finding of the tokens.

Upon leaving, the bride threw her bouquet from the stairway and it was caught by Miss Maude Gribble, whom fate ordains shall be the next bride. The bride presented her maids with lovely bar pins, as a token of her love and appreciation.

The bride and groom left for a Northern trip, after which they will be at home in Bowie, Texas.

"WAY DOWN EAST"

Popular Show at Masonic Theater In Louisville Next Week For The Seventeenth Time. Begins Monday.

For the seventeenth consecutive visit "Way Down East" comes to the SHU BERT MASONIC theatre Louisville for a week's engagement, commencing Monday, Nov. 13th.

This delightful play of life in New England, is always hailed with delight by the lovers of the pure and wholesome drama. "Way Down East" is a play of yesterday, today and always. It has human nature and a fragrance that is refreshing in its very homeliness. There is no play on the American stage today that has a firmer hold on the heartstrings of local amusement seekers than has this offering from the pen of Lottie Blair Parker, and year after year it goes through the country winning new admirers and retaining the admiration of those who have been its patrons since the first presentation of the piece.

The prices for the engagement will be 15c to $1.00 at night. Popular price matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday, when the prices will be 25c and 50c for the best seats.

Miss Herring of Ohio.

Dear little notes in blue and white announcing the arrival of Miss Dorothy Coughlin Herring at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herring, of Mansfield, Ohio, were received here last week. The mother was Miss Adele Fisher and before her marriage visited her aunt, Mrs. Adele Hambleton of this city.

Professional Visitors.

Attorney Hal Murray, Postmaster Sherman Ball, Judge Henry DeH. Sherman and Mr. Jeff Hook came down in Mr. Hook's machine Monday and spent the afternoon at Tar Springs.

THE ORPHAN BABY

Remember Him Thanksgiving. Got Any Old Clothes, An Extra Cloak Or A Pair Of Shoes To Pass On To The Needy?

Suppose you did not have a Mamma or a Papa? Just think if you were a little baby without a soul who could give you a home, do you think your Thanksgiving day would be very happy.

The Methodist Orphan's Home has written to Cloverport for an offering for the boys and girls living there. Matters not whether you are a Methodist or just a man with a heart--send what you can to Nolte's store next week and tell them to put it in the orphan's home box. A pair of shoes, a dress, something to eat, anything to give life and comfort to the orphan, send or take it to Nolte's. Cash contributions are wanted and will be received by Mr. Nolte, C. W. Moorman, Mrs. J. D. Babbage and Mrs. Frank Fraize.

If you have your eye sight, your hearing and the other three senses, surely you are thankful and shall willingly express your gratitude by making an offering to the needy children of our state.

Miss Weatherholt Weds

MATTINGLY

Held over from last week.
John L. Hawkins, of Louisville, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stinnett, of West View, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Taul last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mattingly, of West View, visited his sister, Mrs. Fladge Whitehouse, last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Frank left last Sunday for Evansville, their future home.

News has been received here of the death of Mr. Davis of, West View. He was the father of Mrs. Sam Laslie, of McQuady.

The protracted meeting is in progress at the Clover Creek Baptist church. Rev. Lashbrook, of Daviess county, is conducting the services.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rice, of Tar Fork, celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday last Thursday, Nov. 2. She entertained a large number of friends and relatives to a bountiful dinner.

Mrs. Vane Pate visited relatives in Tobinsport last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike Wells and B. F. Frank went to Hardinsburg last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Taul, of Evansville, attended the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Forrest Miller.

Little Wavey, the four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lollie Keenan, is seriously ill.

Vane Pate has returned from Louisville.

Mrs. Forrest Miller, (nee Duncan) died at her home at McQuady, October 29, of typhoid fever. She leaves a husband and seven small children. She was the daughter of Mrs. Nat Taul, of Mattingly.

Mrs. Sarah Frank, who has been confined to her bed for the past three years, left last week for McQuady to visit her nephew, John Bates. She was accompanied by her daughters, Misses Annie and America.

Dr. Wm. Howard has sold his house and land at Mattingly and has moved to Louisville to be with his daughter, Mrs. Charlie Howard. His many patrons regret to give him up. They do not think there is another doctor that can fill his place.

CURED TO STAY CURED

How Cloverport Citizens Can Find Complete Freedom From Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—From urinary disorders—From any disease of the kidneys, Be cured to stay cured. Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.

Grateful people testify. Here's one case of it:

Mrs. Jacob Snyder, Fourth St., Cannelton, Ind., says: "I suffered constantly from pain in my back and when my daughter learned of my condition, she sent me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. They were the first remedy that ever had any effect on my trouble. My back was greatly strengthened through their use and the dull, nagging pain was disposed of. Since then I have always kept Doan's Kidney Pills in the house and have recommended them at every opportunity." (Statement given April 17, 1907)

A LASTING EFFECT.

On March 14, 1910, when Mrs. Snyder was interviewed, she said: "The statement I gave for publication in 1907, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. Kidney trouble has not bothered me since."

RAFTS OF GNAT EGGS.

Their Floating Illustrates a Curious Property of Water.

Many simple experiments show that the surface of water possesses a property which causes it to resist the passage of bodies either from above or below. This is true not only of soapy water, but of the cleanest and purest water as well. A sheet of fine gauze tends to float because, its weight being widely distributed, each of the numerous separate wires is resisted by the surface film so that the water cannot readily pass through the meshes. Insects and plants utilize this fact in many interesting ways. Some water plants whose leaves float on the water have a very simple contrivance to keep the upper surfaces of the leaves dry. This consists of a great number of minute hairs covering the tops of the leaves. Water cannot penetrate among these hairs even when the leaves are forced down beneath the surface.

The little rafts of eggs that gnats set afloat on the water are kept from sinking and from being upset through this same principle. The tiny eggs have their points all upward, and they are glued together so closely that, while there is open space all around the point of each egg, yet the width of these spaces is so slight that water cannot readily pass through. You may again and again upset such an egg raft, but it will right itself every time, and the upper surface will remain dry.

ARMS OF THE MEDICI.

The Gilded Globes That Mark the Pawnbroker's Shop.

Few persons seeing the signs of the vast wealth of our avuncular relatives in most thoroughfares in London pause to consider their origin. Of course it is the balls of gold to which we refer. Not only may they be taken as indications of wealth, but as a sign that pledges are received. But the balls do not indicate what they really are. They are the arms of the Medici family. Whoever has visited Florence will recall the three balls alternated with the red lilies. But how comes it that the decorations of the Tuscan palace have found their way to London and elsewhere?

The explanation is not difficult if we give the subject a moment's thought. The first gold changers to settle in London, as in Paris, were the Florentines or Lombards. They chose Lombard street as the place where they would carry on their business. These early settlers are perpetuated today by the bankers. In the early days the inhabitants counted among their number some of the Medici family, and to inspire confidence they exhibited their family arms, to which they had a perfect right. The family of Medici is extinct today, but their arms survive them, the present users thinking the respectability of the origin too great to be dispensed with.—London Globe.

Fatalities to Trespassers on American Railroads

The number of lives lost in wars today, with fighting continually going on in some corner of the world, is nothing as compared with the annual record of fatalities due to trespassing on American railroads. Ignorance or carelessness on the part of the trespasser is responsible for most of this. The railroads are bending every effort to cut down the awful toll of death by posting signs and maintaining police patrol, but they will never be completely successful without the co-operation of the general public.

Every densely populated industrial center near a railroad is a death center. The working classes in crowded districts, and tramps, furnish the majority of victims. Railroads say people must be taught to have more respect for their lives and safety.

With education of this kind in view, the Pennsylvania Railroad is preparing pamphlets in eight or nine languages. These will be distributed in schools with instructions to the pupils to take them into their homes. The Board of Education of the State of Pennsylvania has promised its aid. The assistance of clergymen has been solicited, and from hundreds of pulpits the danger of trespassing has been preached. From the good roads trains run through rural districts, and in the farmers' granges the warning has been sounded.

As a result of the education movement and a vigorous campaign against tramps, the number of persons killed while trespassing on the Pennsylvania Railroad's property in violation of the law, has been gradually reduced from 887 in 1905 to 585 in 1910, and the number of injured has fallen from 794 to 582 in the same time. To put these figures in another way; in 1905 the railroad was killing trespassers at the rate of three a day for five months of the year, and two a day for the remaining seven months, while in 1910 the number sacrificed had decreased to two a day for seven months and one a day for the other five. Railroads are perhaps the greatest sufferers from the tramp evil, and they are willing to do all in their power to stamp it out, but this cannot be accomplished until the citizen realizes the seriousness of the matter and takes his part in the campaign.

Until this country follows the lead of Europe in the matter of legislation to check vagrancy there can be no satisfactory cure for the evil, but if the small communities would punish offenders. Instead of passing them along, it would be greatly ameliorated. By doing this, and by aiding the railroads in their campaign to educate the public against trespassing, more loss of life will be averted than by establishing world peace.

A great victory! And every Democrat in Breckenridge is proud of it. It shows where Kentucky and Democracy stand when the right men are put up. Men without taint of character and of known integrity. This paper predicted as soon as the ticket was named that it would be elected by 30,000 majority. When you get a good ticket and a united Democracy, Kentucky will always be found in the Democratic column.

Now let us do what we have promised to do—carry out the pledges of the platform. As the Lexington Leader says:

"With justice must every interest be treated,—whether corporate or individual. Every question must be decided, by those elected to executive offices and by those elected to legislative offices, with an eye single to the people. By their performances in office, not by their majorities in the contest for office, will the successful candidates be judged. To them is confided the future of Kentucky and upon them rests the heavy obligation, as to them is given the glorious opportunity, to serve Kentucky, which has given them commissions as trusted officials and expects and demands that they be faithful servants."

Have you ever visited a print shop? Have you ever wondered how a newspaper is made up? To us, it is the most interesting art in the world. You know it takes a billion grains of wheat to make a barrel of flour and takes a billion pieces of type to set up a newspaper.

Some papers are set by machines, either a linotype, monotype or a simplex. The first machine sets a line and if a mistake is made then the whole line must be reset. The second machine sets each type separately and in case of a mistake, just the letter or word is changed. The Breckenridge News is set wholly by hand.

We are telling these facts to create among our readers an understanding of the work of getting out the paper. Each letter is picked up separately and set in a stick—if it is the right letter it saves much time and annoyance.

So, whenever you write an article, especially one of two hundred words, try to write as plainly as you can. Let your letters stand for your character, plain and frank, then those who edit it and prepare it for publication are relieved of a great deal of worry.

The Cloverport voters, last Tuesday, by their ballot, named six men to serve the town in the capacity of councilmen and Attorney V. G. Babbage as Police Judge. The new officers, though some are old in service to the town, are representative citizens. They are hard working men. Barney Squires makes the flour for our bread, Sam Conrad sells stoves to keep us warm, Curt Weatherholt keeps us supplied with Groceries, Henry Yeager, W. V. Perkins and Ed. Whitehead are active in business and never spend an idle minute. They will make us good officials. The duties they have before them to perform are not all pleasant ones, but it is believed by their friends their record will be honest and unbiased for the citizenship as a whole.

Cloverport is a town that deserves perfect government. No town can boast of better blood, better intellect and more right-thinking

LITTLE STORIES WRITTEN

While The Press Thunders

BY LOUISE

"I want to ask you about the little widows of India," said Mrs. Francis Smith to Miss Rogers after she had finished her charming talk on missions at the home of Mrs. Chas. A. Tanner Thursday afternoon. Miss Rogers said that they were being better cared for every year. There are no old maids in India for as soon as a baby girl becomes one year old, she is engaged to a man selected by her father. At the age of twelve she is married to him whether she loves him or not. If her family dies and his family does not like her, she is cast out in the street with the slums. There are thousands and thousands of little widows in India. The missionaries are looking after them and one has given a home to 2000.

Miss Rogers said her heart is in India and well she would like to return to the field, but she has given her work to the younger people. On the train Thursday evening on her way to Louisville, Miss Rogers said: "Sometimes I weep at the indifference I see to Christianity here, when they are crying for it in heathen nations. The reason of the indifference here of three-fourths of the people, is because the other fourth is not doing their best. Their missionary meetings are perfect bores. They have no enthusiasm or up-to-date methods in their society. They should adopt club methods and have short, sweet attractive services."

She is a member of the Presbyterian Board of New York. She is an elegant woman. She has worked, traveled, and studied. The six years she spent in India gave her inspiration and experience for the great work she returned to do in her home country. Her informal missionary address was mostly about the post jubilee campaign that is going on in the United States now, following the Golden Jubilee tourists, who were in Louisville last February.

Miss Rogers is broad-minded. Although she is a devout Presbyterian she delights in the work of all kinds in other churches. "No matter, what channel your mission work or your mission money goes through, it will be blessed if it is accompanied by love and unselfishness and guidance of our sweet Saviour," was one of the thoughts she left in Cloverport.

The daughters of Mr. P. D. Plank, Master Mechanic of the Henderson Route shops, tell some funny stories about their father's spells of economy. "Daddie has extravagant times and economical ones. One day, I remember, he declared not to get a new suit for that season and that very night he came home from Louisville wearing a diamond stud and a diamond ring." Then his oldest daughter added quickly, "But there is one thing Daddie always economizes with and that is a box of matches. He always has two large Standard Oil lamps burning every evening to read by. He lets those lamps burn the night long so when early morning comes he already has a light and saves a match."

"I wish we could take our work to church meetings during the week. Seems we could listen just as well while we are sewing," remarked a woman earnestly. A vast amount of time is wasted by conventionality and company manners. To drop your sewing when anyone comes in, as social etiquette demands, keeps back a lot of stitches. Many house-keepers are greatly interrupted often by friends who have nothing to do, but to come in and sit awhile. Even business men are frequently set back by loafers. You never know what the house-keeper or merchant has to do, even if they ask you to stay longer.

Some women abhor the fashionable call, but really, it is the most sensible and wisest kind to make. When a woman makes a fashionable call, just a few minutes stay, she is dressed up, she discusses only the most pleasant subjects and her visit is like a refreshing spring shower. But the habit of dropping in for an hour or so gives a woman the chance to discuss everything from the church carpet to scandal about her own neighbors, besides wasting precious time.

Not long ago a well-dressed man passed through Cloverport and pointed to the river. "You can tell that man is a millionaire by the way he points," said Allen Pierce. "He uses all his fingers and a country jake just points with one."

David Gibson, an editor of Cleveland, Ohio, says whenever he sees a piece of good work, he looks up the work-man to compliment him. If he reads a good article, he writes the author and tells him that he likes it.

"Every time I go to see mother I want to take her something if it is only a cake of butter," said Mrs. Tony Nicholas as she was leaving Friday for Hawesville. Her basket was large and filled to the top. In it, besides many other good things to eat, were fresh tomatoes from her home garden. Mr. Nicholas covers the tomatoes over with straw and then before a freeze comes they cut the tomatoes off the vine, wrap in paper and can keep them until Christmas.

An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

CHAPTER II. SOMETHING IS DONE.

IN the morning David Sheldon decided that he was worse. That he was appreciably weaker there was no doubt, and there were other symptoms that were unfavorable. He began his rounds looking for trouble. He wanted trouble. In full health the strained situation would have been serious enough; but as it was, himself growing helpless, something had to be done. The blacks were getting more sullen and defiant, and the appearance of the men the previous night on his veranda—one of the gravest of offences on Berande—was ominous. Sooner or later they would get him, if he did not get them first, if he did not once again sear on their dark souls the flaming mastery of the white man.

He returned to the house disappointed. No opportunity had presented itself of making an example of insolence or insubordination—such as had occurred on every other day since the sickness smote Berande. The fact that none had offended was in itself suspicious. They were growing crafty. It was one man against two hundred, and he was horribly afraid of his sickness overpowering him and leaving him at their mercy. He saw visions of the blacks taking charge of the plantation, looting the store, burning the buildings and escaping to Malaita. Also one gressome vision he caught of his own head, sun dried and smoke cured, ornamenting the canoe house of a cannibal village. Either the Jessie would have to arrive or he would have to do something.

The bell had hardly rung, sending the laborers into the fields, when Sheldon had a visitor. Forty men, armed with spears, bows and arrows and war clubs, gathered outside the gate of the compound, but only one entered. They knew the law of Berande, as every native knew the law of every white man's compound in all the thousand miles of the far flung Solomons. The one man who came up the path Sheldon recognized as Seelee, the chief of Balesuna village. The savage did not mount the steps, but stood beneath and talked to the white lord above.

Seelee was more intelligent than the average of his kind, but his intelligence only emphasized the lowliness of that kind. His eyes, close together and small, advertised cruelty and craftiness. A gee string and a cartridge belt were all the clothes he wore.

As he talked, or listened, he made grimaces like a monkey. He said yes by dropping his eyelids and thrusting his chin forward. He spoke with childish arrogance strangely at variance with the subservient position he occupied beneath the veranda. He, with his many followers, was lord and master of Balesuna village. But the white man, without followers, was lord and master of Berande—ay, and on occasion, single handed, had made himself lord and master of Balesuna village as well. Seelee did not like to remember that episode. It had occurred in the course of learning the nature of white men and of learning to abominate them. He had once been guilty of sheltering three runaways from Berande.

Unfortunately, he was ignorant of the ways of white men. This particular white man educated him by arriving at his grass house in the gray of dawn. In the first moment he had felt amused. He was so perfectly safe in the midst of his village. But the next moment, and before he could cry out, a pair of handcuffs on the white man's knuckles had landed on his mouth, knocking the cry of alarm back down his throat. Also, the white man's other fist had caught him under the ear and left him without further interest in what was happening. When he came to be found himself in the white man's whaleboat on the way to Berande. When his tribe had returned the three runaways, he was given his freedom. And finally, the terrible white man had fined him and Balesuna village ten thousand coconuts. After that he had sheltered no more runaway Malaita men. Instead, he had gone into the business of catching them. It was safer. Besides, he was paid one case of tobacco per head. But if he ever got a chance at that white man, if he ever caught him sick or stood at his back when he stumbled and fell on a bush trail—well, there would be a head that would fetch a price in Malaita.

Sheldon was pleased with what Seelee told him. The seventh man of the last batch of runaways had been caught and was even then at the gate. He was brought in, heavy featured and defiant, his arms bound with coconut sennit, the dry blood still on his body from the struggle with his captors.

"Me savvy you good fella, Seelee," Sheldon said, as the chief gulped down a quarter tumbler of raw trade gin. "Fella boy belong me you catch short time little bit. This fella boy strong fella too much. I give you fella one case tobacco—my word, one case tobacco. Then, you good fella along me, I give you three fathom calico, one fella knife big fella too much."

The tobacco and trade goods were brought from the store room by two house boys and turned over to the chief of Balesuna village, who accepted the additional reward with a non-committal grunt and went away down the path to his canoe. Under Sheldon's directions, the house boys handcuffed the prisoner, by hands and feet, around one of the pile supports of the house. At eleven o'clock, when the laborers came in from the field, Sheldon had them assembled in the compound before the veranda. Every able man was there, including those who were helping about the hospital. Even the women and the several pickaninies of the plantation were lined up with the rest, two deep—a horde of naked savages a trifle under two hundred strong. Some wore penknives clasped on their kinky locks for safety. On the chest of one a china doorknob was suspended, on the chest of another the brass wheel of an alarm clock.

Facing them, clinging to the railing of the veranda for support, stood the sick white man. Any one of them could have knocked him over with the blow of a little finger. Despite his firearms, the gang could have rushed him and delivered that blow, when his head and the plantation would have been theirs. Hatred and murder and lust for revenge they possessed to overflowing. But one thing they lacked, the thing that he possessed—the flame of mastery that would not quench, that burned fiercely as ever in the disease wasted body.

"Narada! Billy!" Sheldon called sharply.

Two men stunk unwillingly forward and waited. Sheldon gave the keys of the handcuffs to a house boy, who went under the house and loosed the prisoner.

"You fella Narada, you fella Billy, take um this fella boy along tree and make fast, hands high up," was Sheldon's command.

While this was being done one of the house boys fetched a heavy handed, heavy lashed whip. Sheldon began a speech.

"This fella Arunga, me cross along him too much. I no steal this fella Arunga. I no gammon. I say, 'All right, you come along me Berande, work three fella year.' He say, 'All right, me come along you work three fella year.' He come. He catch plenty good fella kai kai (food) plenty good fella money. What name he run away? Me too much cross along him. I knock what name out him fella. I pay Seelee, big fella master along Balesuna, one case tobacco catch that fella Arunga. All right. Arunga pay that fella case tobacco. Six pounds that fella Arunga pay. All same one year more that fella Arunga work Berande. All right. Now he catch ten fella whip three times. You fella Billy catch whip, give that fella Arunga ten fella three times. All fella boys look see, all fella Marys (women) look see: blame bye, they like run away they think strong fella too much, no run away. Billy, strong fella too much ten fella three times."

The house boy extended the whip to him, but Billy did not take it. Sheldon waited quietly. The eyes of all the cannibals were fixed upon him in doubt and fear and eagerness. It was the moment of test, whereby the lone white man was to live or be lost.

"Ten fella three times, Billy," Sheldon said encouragingly, though there was a certain metallic rasp in his voice.

Billy scowled, looked up and looked down, but did not move.

"Billy!" Sheldon's voice exploded like a pistol shot. The savage started physically. Grins overspread the grotesque faces of the audience, and there was a sound of tittering.

"Spose you like too much lash that fella Arunga, you take him fella Tulagi," Billy said. "One fella government agent make plenty lash. That am fella law. Me savvy um fella law."

It was the law, and Sheldon knew it. But he wanted to live this day and the next day and not to die waiting for the law to operate the next week or the week after.

"To much talk along you!" he cried angrily. "What name, eh? What name?"

"Me savvy law," the savage repeated stubbornly.

"Astoa!"

Another man stepped forward and in almost a whisper he said to Sheldon:

worst characters for the lesson. "You fella Astoa, you fella Narada, tie up that fella Billy alongside other fella same fella way."

"Strong fella tie," he cautioned them. "You fella Astoa take that fella whip. Plenty strong big fella too much ten fella three times. Savvee?"

"No," Astoa grunted.

Sheldon picked up the rifle that had leaned against the rail, and cocked it. "I know you, Astoa," he said calmly. "You work along Queensland six years."

"Me fella missionary," the black interrupted with deliberate insolence.

"Queensland you stop jail one fella year. White fella master fool no hang you. You too much bad fella. Queensland you stop jail six months two fella time. Two fella time you steal. All right, you missionary. You savvy one fella prayer?"

"Yes, me savvy prayer," was the reply.

"All right, then you pray now, short time little bit. You say one fella prayer quick, then me kill you."

Sheldon held the rifle on him and waited. The black glanced around at his fellows, but none moved to aid him. They were intent upon the coming spectacle, staring fascinated at the white man with death in his hands who stood alone on the great veranda.

"Astoa," Sheldon said, seizing the psychological moment. "I count three fella time. Then I shoot you fella dead, good by, all finish you."

And Sheldon knew that when he had counted three he would drop him in his tracks. The black knew it, too. That was why Sheldon did not have to do it, for when he had counted one, Astoa reached out his hand and took the whip. And right well Astoa laid on the whip, angered at his fellows for not supporting him, and venting his anger with every stroke. From the veranda, Sheldon egged him on to strike with strength, till the two triced savages screamed and howled while the blood oozed down their backs. The lesson was being well written in red.

When the last of the gang, including the two howling culprits, had passed out through the compound gate, Sheldon sank down half fainting on his couch.

"You're a sick man," he groaned. "A sick man."

"But you can sleep at ease tonight," he added, half an hour later.

CHAPTER III. THE JESSIE.

TWO days passed, and Sheldon felt that he could not grow any weaker and live, much less make his four daily rounds of the hospital. The deaths were averaging four a day, and there were more new cases than recoveries. The blacks were in a funk. Each one, when taken sick, seemed to make every effort to die. They believed they were going to die, and yet, believing this with absolute conviction, they somehow lacked the nerve to rush the frail wreath of a man with the white skin and escape from the charnel house by the white boats. They chose the lingering death they were sure awaited them rather than the immediate death they were very sure would pounce upon them if they went up against the master. That he never slept they knew. That he could not be conjured to death they were equally sure—they had tried it. And even the sickness that was sweeping them off could not kill him.

With the whipping in the compound discipline had improved. They cringed under the iron hand of the white man. They gave their scowls or malignant looks with averted faces or when his back was turned. They saved their mutterings for the barracks at night, where he could not hear. And there were no more runaways and no more night prowlers on the veranda.

Dawn of the third day after the whipping brought the Jessie's white sails in sight. His partner was on board, vigorous and hearty from six weeks recruiting in Malaita. He could take charge now and all would be well with Berande.

Sheldon lay in the steamer chair and watched the Jessie's whaleboat pull in for the beach. He wondered why only three sweeps were pulling, and he wondered still more when, beached, there was so much delay in getting out of the boat. Then he understood. The three blacks who had been pulling started up the beach with a stretcher on their shoulders. A white man, whom he recognized as the Jessie's captain, walked in front and opened the gate, then dropped behind to close it. Sheldon knew that it was Hughie Drummond who lay in the stretcher, and a mist came before his eyes. He felt an overwhelming desire to die.

The disappointment was too great. In his own state of terrible weakness he felt that it was impossible to go on with his task of holding Berande plantation tight gripped in his fist. Then the will of him flamed up again, and he directed the blacks to lay the stretcher beside him on the floor.

Hughie Drummond, whom he had last seen in health, was an emaciated skeleton.

"Black water fever," the captain said. "He's been like this for six days, unconscious. And we've got dysentery on board. What's the matter with you?"

"I'm burying four a day," Sheldon answered, as he bent over from the steamer chair and inserted a thermometer under his partner's tongue.

Captain Oleson swore blasphemously and sent a house boy to bring whiskey and soda. Sheldon glanced at the thermometer.

"One hundred and seven," he said. "Poor Hughie."

Captain Oleson offered him some whiskey.

"Couldn't think of it—perforation, you know," Sheldon said.

He sent for a boss boy and ordered a grave to be dug; also, some of the packing cases to be knocked together into a coffin. Having given the orders, Sheldon lay back in his chair with closed eyes.

"It's been fair hell, sir," Captain Oleson began, then broke off to help himself to more whiskey. "Contrary winds and calms. We've been driftin' all about the shop for ten days. There's ten thousand sharks following us for the tucker we've been throwin' over to them. They was snappin' at the oars when we started to come ashore. We got it from the water—water from Owga creek. Filled my casks with it. How was we to know? I've filled there before an' it was all right. We had sixty recruits—full up, and my crew of fifteen. We've been buryin' them day an' night. The beggars won't live, dash them! They die out of spite. Only three of my crew left on its legs. Five more down. Seven dead. Oh, h—! What's the good of talkin'?"

Sheldon sighed.

"That means another addition to the hospital. We've got to get them ashore somehow. Viaburi! Hey, you, Viaburi, ring big fella bell strong fella too much."

The hands, called in from the fields at that unwonted hour, were split into detachments. Some were sent

"Have you seen the barometer?" Captain Oleson asked, pausing at the bottom of the steps on his way to oversee the disembarkation of the sick.

"No," Sheldon answered. "Is it down?"

"It's going down."

"Then you'd better sleep aboard tonight," was Sheldon's judgment. "Never mind the funeral. I'll see to poor Hughie. If you can see your way to it, come ashore tomorrow and lend me a hand. If you can't, send the mate."

"Right O. I'll come myself. Mr. Johnson's dead, sir. I forgot to tell you—three days ago."

Sheldon turned to his partner, calling for boys to carry him into the house. But Hughie Drummond had reached the end. His breathing was imperceptible. By mere touch Sheldon could ascertain that the dying man's temperature was going down. It must have been going down when the thermometer registered one hundred and seven. He had burned out. Sheldon knelt beside him, the house boys grouped around, their white singlets and loin cloths peculiarly at variance with their dark skins and savage countenances, their huge ear plugs and carved and glistening nose rings. Sheldon tottered to his feet at last and half fell into the steamer chair. Oppressive as the heat had been it was now even more oppressive. It was difficult to breathe. He panted for air. The faces and naked arms of the house boys were beaded with sweat.

"Marster," one of them ventured, "big fella wind he come, strong fella too much."

Sheldon nodded his head, but did not look. Much as he had loved Hughie Drummond, his death and the funeral it entailed seemed an intolerable burden to add to what he was already sinking under. He had a feeling—nay, it was a certitude—that all he had to do was to shut his eyes and let go and that he would die, sink into immensity of rest. His weary body seemed torn by the oncoming pangs of dissolution. He was a fool to hang on. He had died a score of deaths already, and what was the use of prolonging it to twoscore deaths before he really died? Not only was he not afraid to die, but he desired to die.

But his mind that could will life or death still pulsed on. He saw the two whaleboats land on the beach and the sick, on stretchers or pickaback, groaning and wailing, go by in lugubrious procession. He saw the wind making on the clouded horizon and thought of the sick in the hospital. Here was something waiting for his hand to be done, and it was not in his nature to lie down and sleep or die when any task remained undone.

The boss boys were called and given their orders to rope down the hospital with its two additions. He remembered the spare anchor chain, new and black painted, that hung under the house suspended from the floor beams and ordered it to be used on the hospital as well. Other boys brought the coffin, a grotesque patchwork of packing cases, and under his directions they laid Hughie Drummond in it.

Half a dozen boys carried it down the beach, while he rode on the back of another, his arms around the black's neck, one hand clutching a prayer book.

While he read the service the blacks gazed apprehensively at the dark line on the water above which rolled and tumbled the racing clouds. The first breath of the wind, faint and silken, tonic with life, fanned through his dry baked body as he finished reading. Then came the second breath of the wind, an angry gust, as the shovels worked rapidly filling in the sand. So heavy was the gust that Sheldon, still on his feet, seized hold of his man-horse to escape being blown away. The Jessie was blotted out, and a strange, ominous sound arose as multitudinous wavelets struck foaming on the beach. It was like the bubbling of some colossal cauldron. From all about could be heard the dull thudding of falling cocoanuts. The tall, delicate trunks twisted and snapped about like whiplashes. The air seemed filled with their flying leaves, any one of which, stem-on, could brain a man. Then came the rain, a deluge, a straight, horizontal sheet that poured along like a river, defying gravitation. The black, with Sheldon mounted on him, plunged ahead into the thick of it, stooping far forward and low to the ground to avoid being toppled over backward.

"He's sleeping out and far tonight," Sheldon quoted as he thought of the dead man in the sand and the rainwater trickling down upon the cold clay.

So they fought their way back up the beach. The other blacks caught hold of the man-horse and pulled and tugged. There were among them those whose fondest desire was to drag the rider in the sand and spring upon him and mash him into repulsive nothingness. But the automatic pistol in his belt, with its rattling, quick dealing death, and the automatic, death defying spirit in the man himself made them refrain and buckle down to the task of hauling him to safety through the storm.

Wet through and exhausted, he was nevertheless surprised at the ease with which he got into a change of clothing. Though he was fearfully weak, he found himself actually feeling better. The disease had spent itself, and the men had begun.

"Now, if I don't get the fever," he said aloud and at the same moment resolved to go to taking quinine as soon as he was strong enough to dare.

He crawled out on the veranda. The rain had ceased, but the wind, which had dwindled to a half gale, was increasing. A big sea had sprung up, and the mile long breakers, curling up to the overfall 200 yards from the shore, were crashing on the beach. The Jessie was plunging madly to two anchors, and every second or third sea broke clear over her bow. Two flags were stiffly undulating from the halyards like squares of flexible sheet iron. One was blue, the other red. He knew their meaning in the Berande private code: "What are your instructions? Shall I attempt to land boat?" Tacked on the wall between

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took five bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Strother, of Owensboro, will spend a few days next week with his mother and sister.

A FREAK OF NATURE.

The Curious Vegetable Caterpillar of New Zealand.

Among the many strange growths, apparently freaks of nature, which are to be found in New Zealand the vegetable caterpillar readily ranks among the foremost. This caterpillar is several inches in length, is hairless and does not differ essentially in appearance from some of the caterpillars of our own land.

Its claim to distinction lies in the fact that when it gets ready to die it digs a hole for itself in the earth and completely buries itself. Later a slender green shoot springs from the spot. This bears two or more leaves near its top.

Upon investigation it is found that the green shoot springs from the head of the dead caterpillar, and further investigation develops the fact that the body of the caterpillar is filled with roots.

The form is retained without change, and the roots do not pierce through the skin or enter the ground. When dug up this dead yet living freak presents a most odd appearance, for the head and even the eyes of the caterpillar are distinctly seen, yet from the head is growing the green sprout, with its leaves.

"I have been somewhat costive, but Doan's Regulax gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly."—George B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

Psychology of Sleep.

The psychology of sleep is a vast and little explored subject. Sleep deepens to trance, trance to death. Therefore in life, speaking somewhat paradoxically, sleep is most akin to death. Whether the spirit is parted from the body and goes long journeys through space, or whether it is in a state of one long dream, parts of which we are alone conscious of, is a matter for the Society of Psychical Research. Yet many of us have dreamed things, seen things or even spoken and heard things in sleep which we have seen, heard or spoken later on in reality. We can more or less follow the stages up to the final sleep of all, but here we must pause, and, with Hamlet, in vain attempt to learn what lies beyond the veil: "And in that sleep of death, what dreams may come!"—London Globe.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets do not sicken or gripe, and may be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate women or the youngest child. The old and feeble will also find them a most suitable remedy for aiding and strengthening their weakened digestion and for regulating the bowels. For sale by all dealers.

"A Child Shall Lead Them."

It was in Boston. They were having a "difference." "After careful cogitation," said he, "I am firmly convinced that I displayed a deplorable lack of discernment in choosing you as the partner of my joys and sorrows."

"You are correct," said she, "and I am sure that I must have been suffering under a mental aberration to have given an affirmative answer to your impassioned pleading."

"I have realized," said Bartholomew, the four-year-old progeny, as he stepped from the nursery—"I have realized for several years that my parental affiliations were uncongenial. I might almost say distasteful. But I have deemed it my duty to continue as 'the tie that binds.' Now I must insist that unless you show to each other the courtesies due my immediate ancestors I shall be forced to repudiate my relationship."

They embraced. Again a little child had won.—Brooklyn Life.

do not have to be advertised would be a reasonable conclusion. But people must be REMINDED of that which is BEST.

This is the reason the best things are advertised. Pick up the daily papers and you will notice that the oldest, most reliable firms are the constant advertisers.

How many times do you see Uneeda Biscuits advertised? Everyday.

How often do you see the firm of Tiffany & Co. advertised? Every month in the leading magazines

FIGHT OFF WORRY.

Don't Waste Nervous Strength and Energy in Useless Fretting.

The immediate cause of neuralgia is poison in the blood; therefore our object is to keep the blood pure and healthy, as it is only when the blood is poor that the neuralgia poisons develop in it. Poor blood is caused by lack of sleep, lack of fresh air, improper food and overfatigue, by too little exercise and by mental worry.

Nothing is easier to say than "Don't worry" and few things so difficult to carry out. But by "Don't worry" the doctors mean do not waste valuable nervous strength and energy in fretting over things beyond your control. Make a point of putting all anxiety from you during meals and above all when you go to bed. Train yourself to think of something cheerful as you try to go to sleep; otherwise your sleep will be harassed and fitful and will do you very little good.

He was a wise man who made it a rule to think of nothing disagreeable after 10 o'clock at night. He at any rate could never have been a victim to neuralgia.

Keep up the general tone of the nervous system and you will have little difficulty in keeping off nervous ailments, notably neuralgia. — London Mail.

A Gift With A Thought In It.

What other Christmas present costs so little and means so much as a subscription to The Youth's Companion—52 weeks for $1.75? It is a gift which benefits not only the one who receives it, but every member of the household.

With many Christmas presents the sense of novelty wears off by the week's end but The Youth's Companion is as new and sought after the fifty-second week of the year as it was the first. It is elastic in its adaptability, too; for it does not matter whether the present is for a boy or girl, young married people, sedate couples, grand-parents—there never was one yet who did not set store by The Youth's Companion. You cannot make a mistake if you give The Companion—and it is only $1.75 a year now. On January 1, 1913, the price will be advanced to $2.00.

The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free The Companion's Calendar for 1913, lithographed in ten colors and gold, and you, too, as giver of the subscription, will receive a copy of the Calendar.—The Youth's Companion, 144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.

Jefferson County, Ky., Second Potato Crop A Record Breaker

The harvesting of the big second crop of potatoes in Jefferson county is now being rushed in order to get the crop out before unfavorable weather begins. The crop is larger than any previous second crop ever produced according to those who keep in touch with the situation, and is larger than this year's first crop. More than 30,000 barrels of seed were planted for the second crop this year. Three barrels are about the average planted to the acre, so that the area planted was about 10,000 acres. Figuring 100 bushels to the acre, a conservative estimate, the crop will aggregate 1,000,000 bushels, the major portion of which are Cobble, Carmen and other white varieties. The crop will be sold principally for seed purposes.—Farmers Home Journal

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a God-send, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all drug ists for 75c., including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

Three Comets Visible

Three comets are now visible in the sky, two in the morning and one in the evening. The Brooks comet which has a tail ten degrees long, formerly appeared in the evening, but passed to the other side of the sun and is now visible in the eastern horizon in the early morning, together with the new comet, 1911 G, which is a tramp discovered by a Russian observer. The comet 1911 G has a tail about two degrees long. The Quinnesette which appears in the evening has no tail. All are beginning to fade and may soon disappear.—Uniontown Telegram
